Global Select Equity Fund – ESG Report

Providing transparency on Environment, Social and Governance aspects of the fund

As at 31 December 2022

ESG INTEGRATION APPROACH

- The Global Select Equity Fund fully embeds ESG integration within its investment process. This means incorporating environmental, social and governance factors to enhance investment decisions. Our philosophy is that ESG factors are an integrated component of the investment decision – meaning that they are not the sole driver of an investment decision, nor are they considered separately from more traditional security analysis.
- The process of ESG integration takes place on two levels: first, with our research analysts as they incorporate environmental, social, and governance factors into company valuations and ratings, and second, with the portfolio manager as he balances these ESG factor exposures at the portfolio level. Both the analysts and the portfolio manager are able to leverage dedicated, in-house resources to assist in analyzing ESG criteria.
- Our ESG specialist teams provide investment research on ESG issues at the company level and on thematic topics. Additionally, they have built tools to help proactively and systematically analyze the environmental, social, and governance factors that could impact our investments. The foundation of the analysis is a proprietary flagging tool called the Responsible Investing Indicator Model. It covers around 15,000* companies and pulls from data sets that are not in the wheelhouse of traditional financial analysis. These data sets include:
 - ESG performance data (i.e. number of accidents, carbon emissions, strength of whistle-blower programs);
 - ESG targets (i.e. plans to reduce carbon emissions, increase diversity, etc.)
 - ESG incidents and controversies (i.e. environmental fines paid, local community controversies/protests against a company, etc.)
- The companies we buy will typically have high quality characteristics as well, with this qualitative assessment based on our analysis of their future economic relevance. As such, our primary emphasis is on company fundamentals, which include the consideration of environmental, social and governance factors. We find that this process tends to yield an ESG-friendly set of companies; however, we also screen the portfolio using T. Rowe Price's proprietary RIIM analysis at regular intervals. This helps us understand the ESG characteristics of the portfolio and makes us aware of any elevated exposures to specific ESG factors.

RECENT COMPANY ENGAGEMENTS

We maintain a regular dialogue with the management teams of companies represented across the portfolio. Our investment-driven engagement program frequently identifies targets through our proprietary RIIM analysis, governance screening and analysts' fundamental research. While we engage with companies in a variety of different contexts, ESG engagement focuses on learning about, influencing or exchanging perspectives on the environmental practices, corporate governance or social issues affecting their business.

While most of the meetings we hold with company managements will include some discussion of ESG topics, we differentiate meetings held with a heavy focus on ESG, meaning ESG issues were the sole items on the agenda or made up a meaningful part of the meeting. Agenda items are classified as "meaningful" when they take up a significant portion of the meeting or are a significant factor in the investment case.

The following are selected examples of recent engagements with companies held in or considered for the portfolio. The examples are not meant to be representative of every engagement held, but to illustrate the types of ESG engagements we are having with the managements of our investment companies.

Yum China (4th Quarter 2022 Engagement)

Focus	Environmental, Social
Company Description	Yum China is the country's largest restaurant company. It was spun off from Yum! Brands and has exclusive rights to operate and sub-license several U.S. fast food brands in China.
Engagement Objective	We engaged with Yum China on the company's emission reduction initiatives and how it manages deforestation and sustainability risks in its supply chain.
Participants	From Yum China: Investor Relations representative From T. Rowe Price: Responsible Investing Analysts (2)
Engagement Outcome	We engaged with Yum China to provide feedback on its emission reduction initiatives. It recently submitted emission reduction goals for Science-Based Targets initiative (SBTi) approval, the first restaurant chain in China to do so. Yum China has also undertaken a full scope 3¹ emission assessment (with the data verified by a third party) by working with suppliers. About two-thirds of scope 3 emissions are attributable to purchased goods. It has taken the first steps to incorporate greenhouse gas reduction into supplier assessments. Importantly, Yum China has reduced its operational emissions intensity by 12% over the period 2019–2021, mainly through equipment upgrades. We also wanted to assess how Yum China is managing deforestation and sustainability risks in its supply chain. While it has made good progress on palm oil and paper, in the case of cattle and soy, the process is more complex and still ongoing. Yum China has reached 100% certified palm oil sourcing. The company has also committed to sourcing paper only from deforestation-free suppliers (and uses the Forest Stewardship Council label to raise consumer awareness). Soy (used in chicken feed) traceability is still a challenge, as is cattle sourcing. Cattle traceability is also weak. The monitoring of suppliers against social and quality criteria is in place, and auditing appears comprehensive. Suppliers must sign Yum China's code of conduct, which is heavily focused on social factors such as human rights and safety. For the first time, a focus on levels of greenhouse gas emissions has been introduced; however, there is no screening for other environmental factors. There have been relatively few suppliers with severe violations, and, to date, Yum China has not terminated a supplier in violation of ESG standards. The company is ahead of regulatory timelines when it comes to removing plastic packaging. China has banned plastic straws and bags. The next phase will be to remove plastic packaging in restaurants. Yum China has already replaced 90% of plastic cutlery and 80% of cups. The company has also been reengineering paper packaging to reduce packaging content. We were able to provide feedback on Yum China's emission reduction initiatives and deforestation and sustainability risk management in its supply chain. We were encouraged by the fact that the company has reached a range of milestones: net zero target setting and submitting interim goals for SBTi validation, achieving 12% emission intensity reduction, incorporating greenhouse gas emission levels into its code of conduct for suppliers, and 100% certified palm oil sourcing.

¹ Scope 1 (direct emissions from owned or controlled sources), scope 2 (indirect emissions from the generation of purchased electricity, steam, or cooling), scope 3 (all other indirect emissions).

General Electric (4th Quarter 2022 Engagement)

Focus	Governance
Company Description	General Electric (GE) is a multi-industrial and financial services company.
Engagement Objective	We engaged with GE on specific governance items and provided feedback in several areas.
Participants	From GE: Senior Counsel - Corporate Securities & Finance, Chief Corporate, Securities & Finance Counsel, Vice President - Global Total Rewards, Executive Counsel - Corporate Securities & Finance; Vice President - Investor Relations From T. Rowe Price: Head of Corporate Governance
Engagement Outcome	We engaged with GE on the results of its 2022 shareholder meeting, executive compensation, and board composition and provided feedback on specific governance items. We discussed the expected sequence of the company's separation into three divisions and what this means for ESG metrics, targets, and disclosure. The company may need to make adjustments to its bylaws, both to accommodate the separation and also to clarify director election procedures as a result of the new U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission rule on universal proxy contests. It is not the company's intention to introduce insulation from accountability, just to make necessary technical updates. At GE's 2022 shareholder meeting, only 60% of investors supported the company's Say on Pay vote. The company has heard feedback from some investors around its temporary use of short (one-year) performance measurement periods, the presence of a common metric in both the short- and long-term compensation plans, and lingering concerns about the reformulation of the chief executive officer's (CEO's) special equity award. T. Rowe Price did not share these concerns and voted with the majority. As the company separates into three divisions, the spun-off entities will have separate boards but with a handful of GE directors serving on more than one. GE has a "huge" director recruitment exercise underway at the moment, trying to populate the new boards with the appropriate mix of industry experience, skills, and attributes. We provided feedback regarding concerns about over-boarding if GE's CEO serves as a director of two of the companies at the start. We achieved our objective of providing feedback in specific governance areas.
