Market Commentary

Global equity and fixed income markets were narrowly mixed in December. Equities were initially buoyed by expectations for a December interest rate cut due to signs of a weakening labor market. Indeed, the Federal Reserve, which reduced rates in September and October despite continued elevated inflation, lowered rates again on December 10. There were hints of sector rotation during the month, as investors seemed to favor cyclical sectors that have previously underperformed but could benefit from lower interest rates and fiscal stimulus legislation passed during the summer. On the other hand, concerns about heightened valuations and enormous capital expenditures among artificial intelligence-related stocks periodically weighed on some high-growth segments.

While equity valuations remain elevated, we have a constructive view on underlying fundamentals, which are bolstered by ongoing fiscal stimulus, easing monetary policy, and a regulatory environment that is generally favorable for risk assets. We continue to see valuation disparities across markets, and favor sectors and regions with improving fundamentals where policy tailwinds and reasonable valuations converge. Policy easing is likely not fully appreciated by markets, offering potential support for equities.

Key risks to global markets include narrowness of AI trends supporting earnings and economic growth and markets, sticky inflation, potential for quickening labor market declines, and ongoing geopolitical tensions. We continue to monitor the economic landscape and maintain our disciplined investment process as we look for opportunities moving forward.

Glide Path (%)

The glide path represents the shifting of asset classes over time and shows how the fund's asset mix becomes more conservative-both prior to and after retirement-as time elapses.

Past performance is not a guarantee or a reliable indicator of future results. Investment return and principal value will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Current performance may be lower or higher than the performance data quoted. To obtain the most recent month-end performance, visit troweprice.com.

The Fund's total return figures reflect the reinvestment of dividends and capital gains, if any.

The principal value of the Retirement Funds is not guaranteed at any time, including at or after the target date, which is the approximate year an investor plans to retire (assumed to be age 65) and likely stop making new investments in the fund. If an investor plans to retire significantly earlier or later than age 65, the funds may not be an appropriate investment even if the investor is retiring on or near the target date. The funds' allocations among a broad range of underlying T. Rowe Price stock and bond funds and derivatives will change over time. The funds emphasize potential capital appreciation during the early phases of retirement asset accumulation, balance the need for appreciation with the need for income as retirement approaches, and focus on supporting an income stream over a long-term postretirement withdrawal horizon. The funds are not designed for a lump-sum redemption at the target date and do not guarantee a particular level of income. The funds maintain a substantial allocation to equities both prior to and after the target date, which can result in greater volatility over shorter time horizons. Derivatives may be riskier or more volatile than other types of investments because they are generally more sensitive to changes in market or economic conditions.

The expense ratios shown are as of the fund's most recent prospectus.

All investments are subject to risk, including the possible loss of the money you invest.

The fund(s) may have other share classes available that offer different investment minimums and fees. See the prospectus for details.
