MARKET COMMENTARY

U.S. equities advanced in February, with some major indexes reaching record highs during the month. As measured by various Russell indexes, small-cap equities narrowly outperformed mid-caps and large-caps, while growth outperformed value in all market capitalizations. Within the S&P 500, all sectors advanced, led by consumer discretionary, industrials and business services, and materials. Utilities fared worst.

Rising U.S. Treasury yields in response to some stronger-than-expected inflation readings and hawkish comments from some Federal Reserve officials occasionally weighed on the market, as investors concluded that the Fed is unlikely to reduce short-term interest rates in the near future. However, investor sentiment was boosted by some favorable corporate earnings reports and continued optimism about companies expected to benefit from demand for artificial intelligence. Reduced expectations that the Federal Reserve will begin cutting interest rates in March have left investors wondering when-and how far-U.S. rates will fall in 2024. We expect modest rate cuts, although the Fed's actions will be influenced by inflation and labor market conditions. If inflation heats up, the pace of rate cuts is likely to slow considerably. But if the labor market shows signs of extreme distress, the Fed could speed up cuts to try to avoid a recession.

The 1-, 5-, and 10-year annualized returns as of 12/31/23 were 49.55%, 13.73% and 12.55% for the fund. Performance data quoted represents past performance and is not a reliable indicator of future performance. Investment return and principal value will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Current performance may be lower or higher than the performance data quoted. To obtain the most recent month-end performance, visit troweprice.com. The Fund's total return figures reflect the reinvestment of dividends and capital gains, if any

The T. Rowe Price Fund shares the portfolio of an existing fund (the original share class of the fund referred to as the "investor class"). The total return figures for the I Class shares have been calculated using the performance data of the investor class up to the inception date of the I Class (12/17/15) and the actual performance results of the I Class since that date. Because the I Classes are expected to have lower expenses than the Investor Classes, the I Class performance, had it existed over the periods shown, would have been higher.

Investors should note that the Fund's short-term performance is highly unusual and unlikely to be sustained.

The Fund is subject to the volatility inherent in common stock investing, and its share price may fluctuate more than a Fund investing in income-oriented stocks. The fund(s) may have other share classes available that offer different investment minimums and fees. See the prospectus for details.

Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance. All numbers are percentages. Analysis represents the total performance of the portfolio as calculated by the FactSet attribution model and is inclusive of other assets. Non-equity positions are excluded from structure shown. Returns will not match official T. Rowe Price performance because FactSet uses different exchange rate sources and does not capture intra-day trading. Performance for each security is obtained in the local currency and, if necessary, is converted to USD using an exchange rate determined by an independent third party. Definitions

Active Share is a holdings based measure of active management representing the percentage of a portfolio's holdings that differ from those in its benchmark. Compared to tracking error, which measures the standard deviation of the difference in a manager's returns versus the Benchmark returns, Active Share allows investors to get a clearer understanding of what a manager is doing to drive performance, rather than drawing conclusions from observed returns. The greater the difference between the asset composition of a product and its benchmark, the greater the active share is.
