INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE AND STRATEGY

The fund seeks to track the performance of a benchmark index that measures the investment return of small- and mid-capitalization U.S. stocks.

Uses a sampling strategy, investing substantially all of its assets in a group of stocks representative of the S&P Completion Index.

Does not attempt to fully replicate the index by owning each of the stocks in it.

The index includes over 3,000 stocks.

BENEFITS AND RISKS

Offers a convenient and relatively low-cost way to approximate the performance of a particular market.

Expenses are lower than the average actively managed fund. Lower expenses can help increase total return.

Lower turnover should mean smaller capital gain distributions, which can help raise a fund's after-tax returns.

Stocks can decline for many reasons, including adverse political or economic developments, changes in investor psychology, or heavy institutional selling.

Index investments are passively managed and seek to match the performance of their benchmark; therefore, holdings generally are not reallocated based on changes in market conditions. As a result, the investment's performance may lag the performance of actively managed investments.

Definitions

Beta: A measure of market risk of an investment option that shows how responsive the investment is to a given market index, such as the Standard & Poor's 500 Index. By definition, the beta of the benchmark is 1.00. An investment with a beta of 1.10 is expected to perform 10% better than the index in up markets and 10% worse in down markets. Usually, higher betas represent riskier investments. Figures are calculated using monthly data and are net of fees.
